

We're a Play Based Preschool

What does play based mean?

School for Young Children's program is designed to welcome all children, facilitate their emotional, physical and academic development and ultimately prepare them for success in Kindergarten and beyond.

You see me playing with play-doh, but really I am strengthening my hands to write and developing my fine motor skills!

You see me playing outside, but really I am using gross motor skills to master control of major muscles and gain confidence in how my body works!

You see me playing with blocks, but really I am learning about shapes & sizes, sharing, problem solving and cause & effect!

You see me playing on a computer, but really I am using decision making skills & hand eye coordination that reinforces what I've already learned!

You see me painting, but really I am learning color concepts, creativity, emotional expression, cause & effect & art techniques!

You see me playing house, but really I am learning sharing, problem solving, self confidence & abstract thinking!

You see me playing, but really I am sorting. It will help me begin to notice how items are alike and different, which is needed for math in elementary school!
